April 21, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Detective Services Melbourne, a leading private investigative firm, has announced the addition of three services to their portfolio. The company has recently announced that they will be offering full investigative services for online fraud, assets search and employee theft services.

?In our spirit of helping people recover their assets or get justice from online fraud, we are glad to announce that we are now open to offer the services. We have also hired an online anti-fraud specialist to help us with our investigative work,? Mark Grover, company founder says.

The announcement by the private investigator Melbourne Company comes in the wake of increased cases of online fraud cases throughout Australia. According to statistics from a Perth based research firm, online fraud has now surpassed cell phone fraud in the country. In Melbourne also, cases of online fraud have also been on the rise in the last five years. Mark Grover quotes a local research done among Melbourne business class that found out that as many as 30% of people in the country were at risk of online fraud.

?A recent study found here in Melbourne shows that a third of people in the city could become victims of online fraud at any time. The study also showed that cases of employee theft hasn't subsided significantly in Melbourne despite police's efforts to lower down the crime rates," Grover says.

Mark Grover having established public investigators in the police force, they hardly prioritize services such as online fraud among small business people. By contrast, police investigations tend to concentrate on cases of capital crimes like murder or business fraud by medium and large corporations. However, James Campbell, the spokesperson of Detective Services Melbourne, private investigators in Melbourne have been doing a great job to supplement police work in the past few years.

He notes that private investigators in Melbourne have in certain occasions collaborated with police to help find missing persons. Campbell also says that the private investigators' efforts to help apprehend online criminals and solve employee theft cases.

"It is not once in Melbourne that we have stepped in to help find missing persons where public investigations had failed. We supplement their work a lot. By adding the new services to our portfolio, we feel that Melbourne will be a safer city with fewer crimes," Campbell says.
