April 26, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

BSW Roofing and Solar in Bakersfield, California, has announced that they host a Lunch & Learn Solar University event twice a month, and the latest was held on April 25. The event is free to attend for local residents and is designed to give local customers answers to any solar questions that they may have.

"Our solar-university is designed to help you better understand solar power, how it works and the benefits that it can offer to you and the environment," says Ernie Montoya, a representative for the company. "We will have another event coming up in a few weeks and just want everyone to be prepared to come and join us for this question and answer period."

BSW Roofing and Solar has more than 75 years of industry experience. The company states that their focus lies in customer satisfaction. They provide a free-quote to customers who contact them for solar solutions and say that they take pride in offering customers a lunch and learn environment where they can have their questions about solar power answered by industry professionals.

"If you're a homeowner and you want to know more about solar," says Montoya, "then you should definitely consider joining us for the next university event. You'll have lunch while you learn all about what solar energy can do for you and how you can begin implementing it in your life."

Montoya says that the events are generally scheduled for Tuesdays between noon and 1:00 p.m. but states that those who are interested in joining them for the next upcoming event should check their website at <http://www.bswroofing.com/> to register and learn more about the dates, time and location of future sessions.

The company states that solar energy is a fast growing alternative for power and points out that those who are not informed of all of the benefits of this type of energy should contact the company to learn more and to schedule a consultation to receive a quote for adding solar power to their homes. Area residents who would like to learn more can visit the company on their official website or connect with them on Facebook to be kept informed of new events as they are scheduled.
