May 19, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Happy Hour Specials Yum, a leading online place for checking local food prices, has launched their new redesigned website-happyhourspecialsyum.com. According to group CEO, Liam Daniel, the launch of the new website serves as an expanded access point for people from different parts of the country to checkout restaurants and meals served in joints closer to them.

“Although eating at restaurants can be awesome, most people never share this experience for fear of trying out foods in restaurants they have never visited before,” says Daniel. “We want to change this perspective by helping as many people as possible view and compare menus and prices in different top rated restaurants around them. We want our website to be a trusted resource where anyone can find information about their favorite restaurants,” Tom Turner from HappyHour SpecialsYum says.

The new website comes in a new design and provides access to information about a restaurant’s social media pages, website, restaurant offers and meals. The website also features information about an extended number of restaurants from around the city. According to the website’s spokesperson, David Joel, the website is designed to offer as much helpful information about restaurants as possible. David adds that that happyhourpecialyum.com is launched to serve as an information source for virtually anyone who is fond of eating at popular restaurant chains wherever they go.

?Our website is geared to help people who enjoy eating out at popular restaurant chains wherever they go with information that can make them find their favorite meals at the best prices. We shall also be offering tips for finding discounted meals to people who are not necessarily patrons of any popular restaurant,? David says.

With the new website, Happy Hour Special Yum offers a fresh, attractive look geared at improving functionality and user experience. The site has contact details for both the support staff at Happy hour special yum and contacts for restaurants near you that one would find appealing to visit.

According to David, Happy hour special Yum has been offering information services to restaurant patrons for a few years. David says that he got inspiration to start Happy Hour Special Yum after finding constant challenges with finding helpful information to help find restaurants around the new city he visited. Daniel adds he started out providing tips to patrons on social media website before he decided to expand his reach through <http://www.happyhourpecialyum.com>.

?The idea to start this website was inspired my own challenges travelling around the country. I love travelling, but every time I visited a new city I found challenges identifying a branch for my favorite website. But then I decided to take action and help my friends through social media sites. I would do lots of research about meal discounts and share to my social media account. Now with the help of this website, I hope to help more people around the country have information about new city restaurants early."
