June 12, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

JM Septic, a septic tank cleaning company, has held its grand opening in Columbus, TX. The company's headquarters is located in Cypress, Texas, and they have been serving Columbus and its surrounding areas for four decades. Nevertheless, as part of their commitment for continuous improvement in their services, they have now established an office in Columbus.

A representative from J&M Septic says: "We have been cleaning septic tanks for over 40 years. Our primary focus is septic pumping and certified inspections. We make sure all tanks and compartments are pumped according to county requirements. Our mission is to provide a thorough job so as to minimize expenditures to our clients. We therefore look forward to meeting your septic tank needs."

The septic tank services that the company offers cover both residential and commercial tanks. These include septic system cleaning and evaluation, cesspool pumping, system repairs, and septic and cesspool treatments. They also place a strong focus on educating communities on the importance of proper maintenance of septic tanks as a way to increase their lifespan. As such, they also offer regular maintenance contracts.

The representative adds: "We essentially offer a full service for everything related to septic tanks and cesspools. We are available 24/7, so if someone has an emergency, they can ring us straight away and we'll be there as soon as we can. We do not have an overtime charge either, so people can ring us anytime with confidence."

J&M Septic has extensive experience in all aspects of these tanks. They understand where they are placed, how they are placed, how they work, and what needs to be done if the tank stops working. The representative adds: "In order for your tank to continue operating well, the amount of impurities it takes in shouldn't exceed a certain level. An inspection from a dependable Columbus TX septic tank service such as ours will help you assess the situation and determine exactly whether or not your tank needs cleaning."

People looking for septic tank installation, repair, or maintenance in the Columbus, TX area and surroundings are encouraged to contact J&M Septic as soon as possible.
