FloridaRentToOwnHomes.com, which specializes in rent to own homes in the greater Fort Lauderdale, FL area, has noticed a tremendous increase in interest in such properties after a significant lull in the market. In order to ensure that people always have the best information available to them, they have created a new service enabling people to always have the latest information on available properties. The service is 100% free and can be signed up for through their website at <http://www.floridarenttoownhomes.com>.

A representative from Florida Rent to Own Homes says: "We have created a list system that people can access for free through our website. By entering their email address, they will also be notified whenever new properties become available. In so doing, we hope to allow more people to find a rent to own property to suit their needs."

They have also launched their Facebook page at <https://www.facebook.com/FloridaRentToOwnHomes/>, where they share news and other pieces of information about the market as a whole and the rent to own system in particular. They encourage everyone to like this page, to allow them to always have the most up to date information on these properties. The company representative adds: "Our Facebook page is designed to be a community. Whenever there is any news on the rent to own market, we share it there and encourage people to ask questions and get involved in the conversation."

As a leading rent to own company in Fort Lauderdale, the company is committed to ensuring their clients have the best possible knowledge and information to hand. The rent to own process represents a significant financial commitment. Thus, it is vital that people are empowered to make an informed decision. The company's website, therefore, also includes a wealth of tips and information on how the system works and what to expect out of the process.
