Indianapolis, IN, June, 2017 -- With record economic pressures, there is one company on the rise nationally that is bailing out its clients who are victims of flooding, fire, and other home-related emergencies.

Ireland Restoration Services of Indianapolis, Indiana, has launched emergency water damage restoration services in order to help those who have been victims of a water or fire-related disaster. The company has years of flood and fire restoration experience with an exemplary record of restoring homes that have been damaged by accidents and natural disasters.

With months of training it takes for certified technicians, equipment, and other support and logistical infra-structure, Ireland Restoration Services is now 100% operational and solving water damage, fire damage restoration, and other disaster services with their high-quality services to family and businesses all across central Indiana.

"The reason we are growing is simple," states Ireland Restoration Services. "Our company prides itself on using strict business practices, green technologies, and what we hope is the best customer service one has ever seen. We only do things one way: the right way."
