Construction and Management Training Limited, a business in Cambridge, United Kingdom, is a company that offers registered training courses to the UK's construction industry. They are fully CPCS (Construction Plant Competence Scheme) and Health & Safety accredited. They are proud to announce that they have recently completed their dedicated training facility in Cambridge, which is now open for business.

Jason Beale from Construction and Management Training Limited says: "Construction on our new training center has now been completed and we couldn't be happier. From here, we will deliver all of our training packages, and we also welcome inquiries from those who want to develop bespoke training. Our new center has already received the CITB CSkills Award approval, guaranteeing the quality of our programs."

At present, the company offers CPCS training, as well as NVQ assessments, Site Safety Plus, management training, NPORS & nonaccredited plant training, general health & safety training, working at height training, confined spaces training, new roads & street works training, and more. Each of these programs are fully accredited and enables people to legally operate within different elements of the construction industry. The company is dedicated to improving standards of safety, management, and operation within this industry, and they have played a pivotal role in achieving that.

Beale adds: "Our flagship training centre in Cambridge is setting the standard for delivering construction training. We offer a variety of accredited training courses and NVQs. You can find our training courses on our website. We are proud of their student's achievements and would love to see you there."

Those who have completed training through the company have been very impressed with the service they have received. "By far the most interesting and well presented professional training company and staff I've ever come across. Would thoroughly recommend for the best training available in the industry," says Ricci A. on the company's Facebook page.
