Sanford, FL company Monika's Marketplace had set out to find a solution for the problem brought about by food splatters when cooking or warming up food using the microwave oven. While a number of glass domes existed, these products presented another problem due to the heat they would hold, and the dangerous amount of steam that would build inside them. The company was able to release a plastic microwave cover lid, which is 100% BPA free. The company is now proud to announce that the item is now a best selling product on the Amazon marketplace.

A representative from the company says: "Here at Monika's Marketplace, we want to make sure that people can live their lives with convenience while remaining safe at the same time. Specifically, we wanted people to avoid food splatters when using the microwave. This is why we released our microwave cover, which enables them to cook quickly and efficiently, protect their microwave from food residue, and keep their food warm while they cook a second or third plate. We're so happy to see that it is now a really popular item."

The microwave cover lid, as stated, is made from certified 100% BPA-free plastic. It comes with a top vent through which steam can be released safely before removing the lid. The cover fits most standard plates and is very easy to clean. In fact, it can even be cleaned on the top shelf of the dishwasher.

Those who have used the cover have been very pleased with their experience, praising it for its effectiveness, the safety vent, and the fact that fits on most standard sized plates and dishes. "So far this Microwave Food Cover has worked really well for us. I have a couple of Le Creuset casserole dishes that didn't come with covers. This cover fits over them perfectly, and is much better than wasting plastic wrap every time I want to use them in the microwave. For re-warming bread or rolls, the cover keeps in the moisture so they don't dry out. Our plates are larger than the cover, but it works very well sitting on top of the plate...," says an Amazon customer.
