Jim Butler Law Firm Focuses On New Texas Marijuana Diversion Program That Started In June

October 17, 2017

October 17, 2017 -
Butler Law Firm, based in Houston, TX, has recently been placing a focus on the new Texas marijuana diversion program, which came into force in June 2017. Specifically, the law firm is preparing for the potential rise in DWI cases, which is their main area of practice. In preparation for this, the firm is reviewing existing DWI laws and how these will be impacted by marijuana legislation.

Jim Butler, owner and founder of Butler Law Firm, says: "We welcome the positive impact the new diversion program will have on the overall judicial system. Because marijuana is now legal for recreational use, there will be far fewer charges for possession. That said, it will also change DWI arrests. In the past, these would usually be charged mainly with possession, with the focus of DWI being strongly on alcohol. Now, however, those caught driving while having consumed marijuana, in whatever form, will face DWI charges."

Luckily, Butler Law Firm is known as the best DWI attorney in Houston, thanks to their dedication to gaining a positive outcome for each of their clients. They do not judge people and they believe that everybody is entitled to the best defense. Their goal is to make sure that a DWI arrest does not ruin people's lives, but rather gives them the opportunity to better themselves. This is why they have received numerous positive reviews. For instance, M. Long says on Avvo: "If you're looking for a great lawyer and a great person, then you should definitely hire James. I hired Jim to defend me in an extremely important case and it was one of the best decisions I have ever made. Jim is a wise man, he stood by me, worked with me, got to know me and put it all into play. I was acquitted of the charge against me and feel very thankful to have found Jim and his always friendly staff."

People in the Houston location who are facing a DWI charge, whether relating to the new marijuana diversion program or not, are encouraged to contact Butler Law Firm as soon as possible to get the help they need.
