

Pizzle Sticks Shown To Be Highly Nutritious Dog Treats

June 24, 2015

June 24, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Chapo's Choice, a business in Portland, OR has just released their new nutritious pizzle sticks on Amazon. These sticks are some of the most nutritious of all dog treats. Chapo's Choice hopes that many more dog owners will consider them for their pets.

Pizzle sticks are also often known as bully sticks. They are one and the same thing, namely that they are made from cow penis. While many people refer to these treats as bully sticks, pizzle is another acceptable terminology.

"It's understandable that dog owners don't see that pizzle sticks and bully sticks are one in the same", says David Layden from Chapo's Choice. "They are both polite terms for what the product is actually made from."

Three years ago, a family in Oregon adopted Chapo, a rescue dog. The little terrier chihuahua mix immediately stole their heart. It is believed that Chapo is now around six years old and he is the inspiration behind Chapo's Choice. The first product the company released in February 2015 was the pizzle stick.

Chapo taught the family that dogs deserve nothing but the best. As such, they decided to start making the most nutritious pizzle sticks available on the market today. They are sourced exclusively in this country and are made from free range cow's penis. They are all natural and completely free from smell. Because of this, they are also fully suited to dogs with sensitive stomachs, such as the chihuahua in particular.

The fact that the bully sticks are completely odor free is one of its main selling points. Chapo's Choice highlights that creating an odor free product is only possible when the ingredients are all natural and of high quality. Indeed, they recommend that anyone checks the ingredient list of any bully or pizzle sticks they have at home. In many cases, these include ingredients that are almost impossible to pronounce. Chapo's Choice, by contrast, uses easy to pronounce, natural and recognizable ingredients, guaranteed to be made in the USA. Furthermore, these ingredients are all of high nutritional value.

Because none of the Chapo's Choice pizzle sticks are made by machine, each single stick is unique. While they are all six inches in length, there are notable differences between each of them. This is another sign of the high quality of the product itself. Dog owners can feel confident of feeding these treats to their dogs.

The Chapo's Choice line of pizzle sticks has already become very popular. The company expects to expand their line very soon. Any new products will also be available on Amazon for the convenience of their customers. It is also recommended to follow on Twitter to be kept up to date with new developments.
