Grace Foods is recommending that couples and families having picnics this summer get its Jamaican Jerk Seasonings to spice up their meal choices. The product comes in mild and hot, allowing users to get the desired level of spiciness for grilled meats, whether consumed alone or used in picnic sandwiches.

Made from a number of exotic Jamaican herbs and spices, the jerk seasonings allow users to add an authentic jerk taste to chicken, fish, pork, beef, tofu and even vegetables. It is available in a 10-ounce bottle, though shoppers can purchase 4-pack and 12 ?pack bundles depending on their individual needs. In addition, it can be used as a jerk sauce and applied onto grilled meats, or used as a jerk marinade or wet jerk rub.

With summer being a time of fair weather for many areas in North America and with a reported 75% of U.S. adults owning a grill or smoker, picnics that include grilled meats and sandwiches are abundant, commencing from the Memorial Day weekend. Grace Foods recommends the addition of its jerk seasoning to lessen the time taken to prepare meats and vegetables for grilling, as well as to add the right amount of spiciness and flavor for delicious picnic treats.

Since being available online, the Jamaican Jerk Seasoning from Grace has become a favorite for Jamaicans living abroad, as well as non-Jamaicans who crave the taste of jerk for their barbecues and picnics.

?We needed some way to bring the flavor home. I got some dry rub at the airport but was told I should use a wet sauce as well. This made the meat perfect. Hot, but not too hot and the real Jamaican flavor,? said Aota, a verified Amazon reviewer.

Couples and families who might be seeking to add a real jerk flavor to their picnic meal choices can find the Grace Jamaican Jerk Seasonings on Amazon.com. All purchases are accompanied by a free e-book containing jerk recipes.
