July 18, 2017 -
With a booming legal trade going strong in the USA, a need for customer-centric jury consultants has been identified. To this end, National Press Distributors has created a well researched and comprehensive press release, detailing the best consultant companies in this important business.

Mind Matters (www.mmjury.com) a consulting firm based in Seattle seeks to balance the needs of customers with modern science as it relates to legal matters. Mind Matters has set themselves apart with their focus on whole team knowledge.

Rin C. on Facebook said, "Mind Matters worked hard to ensure that my employees understand their legal obligations and how they should move forward towards their goals. I felt that we were well taken care of and taken seriously."

A2L Consulting is another consulting firm based in Virginia that offers nation services with a heavy focus on communication between clients and the company. A2L has worked hard to set themselves apart as leading experts in the industry.

Finnegan on A2L.com said, "Their team did a very nice job on the simulation in the engine case and I will certainly keep them in mind for future litigation support needs."

With offices spanning the entire USA, Decision Quests is a firm specializes in a large number of different legal areas as well. They are well known for their Pro Bono work and have been recognized by several leading publications. The company has solidified their place on the list with their commitment to low cost or free work for non-profit clients.

One of the reviews on Glassdoor said, "Decision Quest is a great place for someone who likes a new challenge. There is a lot of thinking on their feet."

From Miami to Los Angeles, The Advocates has experience in every part of the law. Their focus on customer satisfaction has led to a large number of repeat clients. Focusing on clients, even in the toughest of situations, has helped The Advocates rise through the ranks. Their national focus and large number of offices around the country have aided them in their quest for superior customer-centric services.

Donnie on Utah Advocates said, "I had a great, responsive, kind, and helpful experience with The Advocates. I personally felt they were happy to have me as a client."

Lastly, focusing their efforts in Beverly Hills, New York, and other highly populated markets, Hennington and Associates has focused on high profile consulting. For this reason, they have risen to the top of the list, with many glowing reviews from high profile clients. With a heavy focus on results, Hennington and Associates has proven itself to be customer-centric by delivering on the demands of their customers.

David on Jury Consulting says, "Dr. Hennington is the best trial and jury consultant in the field. I would not try a single case without his expertise and with the aid of his highly skilled staff members."

These five jury consultants have risen above all others. Necessitating their inclusion in this and future press releases from National Press Distributors. The methodology used is the result of years of research and data compilation.
