Most Customer Centric Senior Living Communities Revealed by New NPD Report

July 10, 2017

July 10, 2017 -
With a rise in demand, senior living communities have become a heralded option.

Individuals are seeking robust, well-run communities and it's time to list out the best of the best. These are communities that are not only well-run but have years of experience in the industry. A choice of this nature requires considerable thought, and it's become necessary to determine which options are qualified and which ones are not.

National Press Distributors has released a new report focused on the most customer centric senior living communities after months of research on the subject. This list will provide a detailed assessment of the top five senior living communities according to industry experts.

With clean facilities, an assortment of amenities, and a well-trained staff, it doesn't get better than Bellewood (www.bellewood.com).

Peggy Dynes on Facebook said, "I am so happy my mother lives at Bellewood. It is a wonderful community and the staff is caring and friendly."

This name has become engrained among the elite options in this part of the world. Industry experts cite Bellewood as a real leader among senior living communities due to its incredible work ethic. Those who are seeking out a robust community will put this at the top of their list. Bellewood has nailed down the art of running a community and is now the "go-to" option for seniors. Each detail is taken into account with its facilities, and that stands out in comparison to all other options.

Silver Age LLC is a bright option as well and one that has earned high respect among seniors.

Daniel Scansen on Google said, "Abby and the knowledgeable team at Silver Age provide a wonderful service in what is often a very difficult endeavor to find the right senior community. Silver Age knows the communities more thoroughly than other referral agencies, which is invaluable when weighing the pros and cons to find the right fit."

The facilities are ideal, and the community is well-run. Everything is optimized to help seniors adjust to their surroundings, and that's what gives it a spot on this list. Silver Age is one of those communities that has understood what it means to run a well-oiled machine. Industry experts cite its attention to detail as one of the appealing aspects of the community.

When it comes to communication, excellent facilities, and a power-packed staff, Aegis of Issaquah does a good job of meeting all requirements.

Daddio I. on Yelp said "We were looking for a place for my mother who has beginning stages of dementia. First, as upsetting as it is to have my mom dealing with this disease and of course my dad being worried about her, etc. finding the "right" place has been a pretty scary experience. We chose this community for what seemed to us to be a very loving environment and also the outside spaces. Most of the other places we went to had very limited outside spaces for residents in a secure memory care area. My mom loves the outdoors. She was a master gardener and worked outside constantly. So far we are thrilled with our experience."

The staff is perfect and has a quality control process in place that yield great results. While it is still adjusting to the world of senior living communities, Aegis of Issaquah does an excellent job of providing quality options to each senior on the premises. This gives it a very good rating and a spot on this list.

Providence Point is a unique community and one of the quietest options in the region.

Debbie Christman Torbitt on Facebook said "My parents have lived here since it's opened. I live out of state and it puts my mind at ease knowing that they live at such a caring facility."

While it doesn't provide the same level of depth as the other communities on this list, its refined approach to the task does earn it a spot. Providence Point is a world-class option and one of those seamless communities that have the vital details intact.

The final addition to this list would be the Corina Adult Family Home, and it's a welcome option for seniors. This is a smaller, high-quality facility that has been run well for years. It can offer the basics and does a good job of putting seniors first in everything.

These are the top five communities in the region and have continued to reach new heights as the years go by.
