

Tonic Innovations Says RFID Blocking Sleeve Can Help Prevent Identity Theft

June 24, 2015

June 24, 2015 -
Todd Bennett, spokesperson for the company ToNic Innovations, has announced that their RFID Blocking Sleeve, which is sold on Amazon, can greatly help customers protect their credit cards, and any other type of cart containing important information, from falling into the wrong hands.

Pickpocketing has evolved a lot when compared to what it used to be in the early days. When people walk in the urban streets, they have to consistently be alert, keeping the personal belongings tightly hidden away to make it difficult for a pickpocketer to run away with their valuable items. Parents tell their children from a young age how to be more street savvy, how to keep their eyes open when strangers come talking to them, or bumping into them. This is already a difficult task to accomplish, because a skilled pickpocketer is able to swipe anything they want without the person realizing it. Todd Bennett made the following statement,

"If you think about it, it is extremely difficult to prevent a traditional pickpocketer from running away with your belongings. Now imagine how difficult it is if someone were to stand right next to you, have no contact at all with your belongings, yet is still able to retrieve all of the information you have on your credit card and cards that contain other valuable information by simply using an RFID reader."

Todd Bennett added that the worst part is that people will only realize this many days later when they find out that something strange is going on with their banking statements. By then, a lot of damage can take place.

ToNic Innovations stated that their card sleeves can solve this problem and give the customers peace of mind. The way in which the protection sleeves do this is by acting as RFID Blocking devices. Once a customer slides a credit card or any other type of card that contains important information into the sleeve, identity thieves will not be able to use their RFID reader to steal the information. The company added that another nice feature of their products is that they are water resistant, puncture and tear resistant and can also protect against weather.

The RFID Blocking Sleeve is able to hold various types of cards such as licenses, loyalty cards, passport cards and credit cards. The company said that customers will appreciate how comfortably these protection sleeves fit inside their wallets.

Todd Bennett reminds customers that while their RFID Blocking Sleeve Credit Card Protectors For Wallet By ID Shield are effective at preventing identity thieves from gaining valuable information, it doesn't mean people should completely relax when walking on the streets. Traditional pickpocketers will continue with their subtle tricks, so customers are encouraged to be street savvy and to stay alert.

For more information on the RFID Blocking card sleeves, interested parties are encouraged to go to the company's Amazon storefront. Here, there will also be able to read reviews written by customers who have already bought their product.
