June 16, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

EduDealer.com, a business in QC, Canada, has today released a range of new courses to help people start their own business online. Starting a business is a huge commitment and one that many people feel is out of their reach. EduDealer.com wants to show people that this is not the case at all, and that anyone can achieve it.

"We no longer live in a world where only those who have a truly innovative idea are able to start a business", says Roma Jedrysiak from EduDealer.com. "Quite the contrary in fact! The reality is that everything is already invented by now. Hence, starting a business is not about coming up with something new, it is simply about meeting demand. We want to point people towards these opportunities and allow them to build a successful business for themselves."

EduDealer has also started a comprehensive Facebook page on <https://www.facebook.com/Udemydiscountcoupons>, where they list any new educational deals and (free) Udemy coupons. Here, they offer a list of free or heavily discounted courses that can be beneficial for those who want to start their own business or simply develop their own personal skills and knowledge. The page has received a huge amount of Facebook likes, as well as numerous positive reviews.

"The only deal site where I have found hundreds of free courses, worth hundreds of dollars", says David Sam. And "Thanks so much for your quick updates everyday! Highly recommend to visit that site to everyone surely you will find all what you need!", says Feona Dion. The Facebook page is continuously update with new development, new courses and new discounts to help people build up their understanding of online business and marketing.

One of the most interesting things about EduDealer, however, is the significant discounts they are able to source for people. For instance, Start a Home Web Design Business and Make $1,000+ Per Month course, which has a 100% success rate so far, is available for just $19, which is a discount of 93%. This is a saving of $280, which is significant considering the course gives a fantastic return on investment event at full price.

"We have so many different courses on our files, each at a huge discount", adds Roma Jedrysiak. "What we want to do is show people that financial independence is within their reach by working online, and that it doesn't have to cost them the earth to achieve this either."

Interested parties are encouraged to regularly check the EduDealer website, as well as to sign up to their Facebook page. Furthermore, they are currently on Twitter under <https://twitter.com/EduDealer>, through which people will also be able to receive timely updates.
