Andrew Simpson, who is the founder of the company Badass Beards, has announced that their Beard Oil conditioner is now available on Amazon. The Beard Oil conditioner can be purchased in a 1 or 2 ounce bottle and is formulated for beard grooming and beard care, and Badass Beards added that it contains 100% natural ingredients. The product also has a built in pump top to make it easier to use.

Andrew Simpson said that customers will appreciate the effectiveness of their Beard Oil Conditioner. By using a small amount every day, the conditioner is able to make the beard soft to the touch, knotless and help it maintain a healthy look throughout the day. This is good news for people that love they beards, because managing them can be quite a chore.

The Beard Oil Conditioner from badass oil is also lightly scented with essential oils, which provides a fresh yet not overpowering smell. The company stated that their natural ingredients have been formulated to help get rid of beard itch and Beardruff, so customers won't only look good, they won't have the unbearable urge to scratch their beards throughout the day. One customer wrote the following review on Amazon,

"What a pleasant surprise it was to see how perfectly packaged this beard conditioner is! First, it comes in this little poster tube type thing and so it would make an awesome gift. It looks, frankly, much more expensive than it is, so that's always good for gift giving. Then, when my husband opened the tube and saw the actual product he was even more impressed. The pump is a great feature as well. The scent is very nice and not overwhelming in the least. It makes my husband's beard smell great in fact. He also states that it does a great job taming and conditioning his beard."

When a beard grows long enough, it can easily become very difficult to maintain. Knots begin to form, which occurs when men scratch their beards a lot or when they are shifting around while sleeping. Getting rid of these knots can be very tiresome, added Andrew, so the company's goal was to provide a solution to not only get rid of that itch that is typical with beards, but to make loosening those knots a breeze. Andrew wrote the following statement,

"Our beard oil is manufactured in a GMP certified facility in Oregon, USA. We only use all natural plant based ingredients in our formulas so that your face and beard have the best experience possible with our beard oil. All of our products are made with environmentally responsible practices and the ingredients are ethically sourced so that over-harvesting and local economies are held at the highest priority."

Badass Beards stated that their mission was to provide "cool products to cool people", but to have fun while doing it. They added that they are excited with their latest product and also have a lot of confidence in it. Because of this, they are offering all of their customers a full 90 day money back guarantee. They said, "We don't want your money if you aren't happy." For those who would like to get more details on their beard grooming products, as well as read many of the positive reviews from current customers, please go to the company's Amazon storefront.
