National Press Distributors Announces New Report of Seattle?s Leading Child Care Providers

July 22, 2017

July 22, 2017 -
National Press Distributors, a digital firm based in Seattle, Washington, has recently released the results of its survey into Seattle?s best child care providers. Drawing on hundreds of customer reviews across the web, the report is intended to help parents choose a reliable, customer-centric child care company that they can truly rely on.

CareWorks- http://careworksnw.com/ - Having been named Seattle?s Best Nanny Service in a recent survey, CareWorks leads the report. Their nanny service means that parents can rest assured their children are being properly looked after in the safety of their own homes. For over two decades, they have a longstanding reputation amongst Seattle parents as the place to come for dependable, superior childcare for both the long- and short-term.

KidsCenter- Located in the heart of downtown Seattle, KidsCenter comes in a close second in the survey because it is located right in the heart of downtown Seattle. This means it is an extremely convenient place for working parents to easily drop off and pick up their children. In addition, they are firmly dedicated to getting to know each child individually, and giving them plenty to do which suits their unique interests.

A Nanny for U- Since 1994, A Nanny for U have been providing some of Seattle?s best child care. What really makes this company stand out is the fact that they offer a specialized newborn service, making them the ideal choice for new parents who want to get back to work, or just need a little help with learning the basics of parenting.

Trettin Drop In Preschool- Located in Seattle?s University District, Trettin offers a flexible approach to daycare. Parents are free to drop their child off at any time, making it a good choice for those who have irregular working schedules. In addition, they also boast very reasonable prices, to help make child care that much more affordable for parents.

Westside Nanny- Offering a personal touch, Westside Nanny is all run by the one person, Madison, who organizes all recruitment and placements. This means that they are more able to match the perfect nanny with each family, instead of assigning them solely based on schedules. As with Trettin, Westside Nanny is also very competitively priced, while still offering a high standard of service, every time.
