Gross & Schuster P.A., a law firm in Crestview, FL, is committed to making sure that people have the opportunity to have fair legal representation if they have been injured through no fault of their own. To achieve this, they have opened numerous offices throughout Florida where people can request a free consultation from a Crestview personal injury lawyer, as well as launch a live chat facility on their website. They have now announced that they also offer a "no fee without recovery" service, so that people will not have to worry about legal fees in the event that their case did not prosper.

"Too many people do not seek out compensation because they are afraid of the legal fees, particularly if they were to not win their case," says Terence Gross, co-founder and owner of Gross & Schuster, P.A.. "We want to make sure that nobody has to find themselves in that situation, which is why we now offer the no fee without recovery service. We encourage anyone to contact us for further details."

The Crestview accident attorney Terence Gross knows exactly how the legal system works. He understands what can and cannot be compensated for, and how to go about receiving that compensation. He has years of experience in doing so, having a background in DUI defense, which means he is highly knowledgeable about drunk driving incidents as well. It is the firm's unwavering commitment to making sure clients have the best legal representation that has been able to earn the firm a 10/10 rating on Avvo.

Ayla G., for instance, says: "His office took all the work out of my hands. I was so overwhelmed with insurance calls and bills flooding in when I retained Mr. Gross. It was nearly instantaneous how his office redirected all communications to his office and organized my injury case nice and neatly. When it finally came time to settle or go to court, I followed Mr. Gross's recommendations and settled my case for an amount that I am very, very happy with."

Those who have sustained injuries in accidents that wasn't their fault are encouraged to contact Gross & Schuster, PA as soon as possible.
