

Falcon Watch

FalconWatch's HawkCam Pro Now On Amazon Through Limited Release

June 20, 2015

June 20, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Roger Hawk, spokesman for the company FalconWatch, has announced that their latest product, HawkCam Pro, is now available on Amazon. The nanny-cam surveillance camera has been designed to provide HD Wi-Fi video, and is also motion activated.

Roger stated that one of the most important features their product contains, when compared to other "Pro" versions from competitors, is that the HawkCam Pro does not require a subscription service to record the images and videos. Customers only need to make a one-time purchase. Also, customers have full control of their images and videos, not the camera company.

The HawkCam Pro is able to record to a SD/TF card on-board, or to a computer hard drive. Customers can also record to popular cloud services. The company said that the product is easy to set up, only taking around 1 minute, and free downloadable Android and iOS apps are also available. One customer wrote the following review,

"We are very happy with the HawkCam Pro and find it very useful as a home surveillance tool. We got it because of some issues in our neighborhood and have already been able to contact a neighbor about some teen activity. We are grateful for the results and hopeful that it will make a difference."

Roger Hawk said that the reason why they feel there nanny-cam is the best Wi-Fi security camera available on Amazon is because of the carefully designed features in the product. The HawkCam Pro has a high definition, 1.3 megapixel lens, and their wide angle lens covers more area with fewer cameras. The nanny-cam also has motion detection, which is a great way to save Internet bandwidth; the camera only operates when needed. The product can also send intelligent email or SMS alerts when it is activated, which is a good way to save time on monitoring. Roger added that this feature is especially handy, because no customer wants to waste time monitoring no activity.

Another customer wrote the following review after purchasing the HawkCam Pro to act as a security camera for their apartment,

"... It is set on the motion detection mode. It automatically sends an email alert, and also sends a snapshot of what set off the camera. Even better than I expected! I can also continually monitor via my iPad. It has given me piece of mind. I highly recommend this product."

Roger Hawk said that the HawkCam Pro can also monitor multiple cameras, and there is a password protected admin and visitor login, which is able to keep out any unwanted watchers. He added that the product is not only excellent for keeping loved ones and property safe, but can also be used at the office which in their opinion makes it the best Wifi security camera. For those who would like more information on the Hawk Cam Pro by FalconWatch, interested parties are encouraged to visit the company's Amazon storefront. Here, customers will be able to get full details on the product's features, and they will also have the opportunity to read reviews written by those who have already purchased the nanny cam.

###

For more information about FalconWatch, contact the company here:FalconWatch.com
Roger Hawk 855-644-6641 info@falconwatchcam.com 3327 N Eagle Rd. #110-131 Meridian, ID 83616

FalconWatch

FalconWatchCam provides home & office security solutions & video security cameras for homes and offices by using existing wifi networks & storage solutions to break the high cost of entry to top quality security & surveillance solutions for home & office.

Website: <http://falconwatchcam.com>

Email: info@falconwatchcam.com

Phone: 855-644-6641

