

FalconWatch's HawkCam Pro Passes Amazon Reviews And Listing Policy

July 01, 2015

July 01, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Roger Hawk, spokesperson for the company FalconWatch, has announced that their nanny cam, HawkCam Pro, has passed Amazon's review and listing policy, and is now available for customers to buy. He added that their product has received a great review rating on Amazon and Hawk Bross, which is currently standing at 4.6 star rating.

Roger stated that they are very excited with the positive feedback they are receiving on the HawkCam Pro nanny cam. He added that one of the main reasons why many consider their product to be the Best Wifi Surveillance Camera is because of the generous features that it comes with. One notable feature is that the nanny cam doesn't require any subscription, which is usually the case with competitors that offer the same type of product. Customers only need to pay once, and all the functionality that comes with the camera, plus the images and videos that get recorded, belongs to the customer. One customer wrote the following Amazon Review,

"I recently bought the HawkCam Pro when I realized the distance allowed by our baby monitor isn't great enough. Shipping was super-fast, and the camera works exactly as advertised. I love the SD-card feature, which lets the camera double as a security cam when the family's on vacation. For security purposes, the ability to upload snapshots for remote viewing, and even detect if an intruder is blocking the lens, is a great plus. One of the deciding factors for the HawkCam (as opposed to a competitor like Dropcam) is that HawkCam offers the best warranty I could find - two years full parts and labor..."

Roger expressed that they are excited to have their product listed and fulfilled by Amazon, because they know that the customers will not only be receiving a high quality Wi-Fi surveillance camera, but that they will be getting excellent customer service as well. He added that the company appreciates the speed and professionalism that Amazon provides when delivering their products.

The company stated that when customers buy the HawkCam Pro, they will be receiving a nanny cam Wi-Fi surveillance video that is capable of producing high definition pictures, and also has a wide angle lens. The nanny cam also features motion detection, is able to send intelligent email or SMS alerts when activated, record media onto an SD card or computer hard drive, has ability to monitor multiple cameras, and customers are able to download a free Android or iOS app for monitoring. Another customer wrote the following review on Amazon,

"So I got the Hawkcamm Pro. I was up and running with the device in less than 3 minutes. It took me more time to open the Amazon box than it did to get the camera out of its carefully packaged box and put it into position. Assembly was easy, and the USB cable was long enough to easily reach the power supply. I hate short USB cables. This was 12 feet..."
