A new head shop has opened in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada. The Honey Pot Glass Gallery is now open for business and features Canadian blown glass art that is functional because it can be used as pipe or a bong. The store states that they offer the best prices in the region on regular china glass as well as normal head shop products and states that they offer a great selection of high end Canadian blown glass art from a variety of artists around the country.

"We strive to be the best head shop in Saskatoon," says Mitch Tarala with store. "Our aim is to offer you everything you could possibly need with blown glass art including those that are functional, such as bongs and pipes."

The inventory of the store that aims to be Saskatoon's best head shop, consists of e-cigarette products including e-juice as well as papers and wraps, vaporizers and their hand blown glass products. The website also features a section that highlights new glass artists and gives an overview of their history and their works.

"It truly is an art," says Tarala. "And it's one that we wanted to bring to everyone's attention at The Honey Pot Glass Gallery. We want you to know where your hand blown Canadian glass comes from, who makes it and even what inspires each artist to produce these beautiful creations."

Glass art dates back for centuries in Canada and Tarala says that the hand blown glass pieces offered at the Honey Pot Glass Gallery are no exception to the beauty of the craft. The store offers a variety of products, much like one would normally see in a head shop, with the addition of specialized glass pieces by local area artists. Tarala says that the entire staff hopes that everyone will join them to celebrate their official opening and states that they look forward to helping area residents with their needs for many years to come.

Those interested in learning more about the products that the store offers or in seeing their selection of hand blown Canadian glass products can visit them online. Interested individuals can also visit the Honey Pot Glass Gallery Instagram page and follow the store on their social media pages to be kept updated about new glass products as they arrive.
