Brittany, Louisiana based Truman Marketing has announced a new service. The company has recently stated that they are now providing businesses with a no cost reputation report that tells business owners what their business needs to be successful with reputation marketing.

"You just enter your business name and phone number into the form on our page," says Joel Gray with Truman Marketing. "Once we have that information, we will create the report for you."

Gray says that the new no cost local 5-star reputation report will assist local businesses in determining their overall online reputation and how they can improve on it. He states that online reputation is essential for all businesses, whether or not they offer products or services online.

"You have to be findable," says Gray. "If people can't find you or can't find any information about your business, you are likely to be losing customers. This is where we come in. We help you to improve your online reputation, which in turn gains you more business."

Truman Marketing offers a market leader package that includes all brand manager and business builder services. With unlimited professionally designed images and 60 second review video commercials each month, Gray says that this is a business' best choice for overall reputation management.

"Our market leader package gives your website and blog review marketing as well as social media, image and video review marketing," adds Gray. "With reputation marketing analytics and SEO, your business is certain to thrive and your online reputation will be better than ever."

Gray says that online reputation can help local companies to garner more business simply by putting themselves on the radar of other local companies. When customers provide positive reviews for a business, others are sure to follow and visit that business for the service or products that they offer.

The package offered by the reputation marketing experts also includes the creation and optimization of up to 15 new local directory listings, which Gray says will help customers to better find local businesses for their needs. Those interested in learning more about the new service or any service offered by Truman Marketing can visit the company online.
