July 11, 2017, Newport Beach, California - The desire to look one's best is not exclusive to women. As a result, increasing numbers of men are seeking facial rejuvenation at their local Newport Beach dermatology office. Dr. Stefani Kappel explores this recent phenomenon in her latest blog.

Men visiting a dermatologist in Newport Beach is certainly nothing new, the doctor claims. However, she is finding it increasingly common that men are requesting Botox, facelifts, and more. Partly, she posits, is that there is less of a social stigma for men desiring to look their best.

Dr. Kappel further explores the subject in her blog by considering the fact that due to recent technological advances, it is easier to achieve more natural-looking results from surgery. The blog provides several examples of such technology and comparative results from today and the past.

In addition to exploring the possible causes for the rise in men seeking facial rejuvenation, Dr. Kappel also hopes that her most recent blog shows some of her readers that it is indeed more common for men to have cosmetic procedures. She believes that acceptance of this fact will help men feel more comfortable in taking the steps they made need to take in order to improve their self-confidence.

Patients and interested readers can visit Dr. Kappel's blog to get information about a variety of cosmetic procedures.

Dr. Kappel offers a variety of cosmetic procedures from facial rejuvenation and Botox to lip injections in Newport Beach. For more information about skincare and cosmetic surgery in Newport Beach, or to set up a consultation or schedule an appointment, call (949)239-0494.
