Rip Toned Fitness has announced that their lifting belt, which has become very popular in the United States, is now available in Italy. The company recently stated that their bestselling Amazon product is now available for purchase on the Amazon Italy marketplace.

Mark Pasay, a representative for the company says, "Not only do we offer a bang for your buck lifting belt, but we give you web content and video tutorials so that you know exactly how to use it to gain the most benefit and avoid injuries when lifting."

Pasay says that a video tutorial can be seen on YouTube that explains in full detail how to use the belt. He states that the company recently decided to offer the belt to customers in Italy as well as other countries such as Spain, Germany and France.

"We want all lifters, those from the United States and all over the world to enjoy our top notch products," says Pasay. "When we saw how popular the belt has become here in the U.S., we decided that it was time to take our products to a global audience."

Pasay says that the company decided to offer the lifting belt on the Amazon Italy site and then to begin placing it on other Amazon sites for additional countries. Their wrist wraps were also recently launched onto Amazon marketplaces all over the world. The company states that their products offer such a benefit to those who weight lift that they wanted to be certain that these lifters have access to their line of quality lifting and fitness products that will help them to make the most of their workouts and aid them in lifting properly so that they can avoid injuries.

There are numerous injuries reported every year by those who do not use or do not properly use lifting aids. Rip Toned Fitness states that they aim to help lessen this number with their selection of lifting products and state that they fully plan to offer more products on a global scale in the near future. Those interested in learning more can find Rip Toned Fitness on the Amazon marketplace at Amazon.it.
