San Diego, CA - A San Diego personal injury attorney recently explained how one can discover whether or not he or she has a concussion following a car accident. Mr. Geruntino explains that even when one believes they weren't seriously injured during the accident, they could still have injuries that weren't immediately clear.

The recent post delves into obvious symptoms like vomiting and a general feeling of nausea, others might not be evident for a few days after the accident. The blog further explains that there are other more subtle symptoms including insomnia and personality changes that could be indicators of a concussion.

Brett Geruntino claims he regularly uses his blog at www.acclaimlaw.com to cover topics, such as concussion, that he feels are important to prospective clients and the public in general and hopes that by informing the public he will eventually have clients who are more aware of what they need and what to expect when they come to Acclaim Law Group.
