Digital2Grow Offers Social Media Trust Packages

October 18, 2017

October 18, 2017 -
Digital2Grow, a subscription based media agency in Silver Spring, MD, has announced that they are preparing a complimentnary 15 post social media package that focuses on reconciliation. They will give this package away to 10 churches that are willing to be agents of healing grace. Those who wish to be affirmatively considered are encouraged to visit the registration page and to leave their organization's details.

Chris Daley, online media advisor at Digital2Grow, says: "In a country where social media is used as an accelerant to demonize each other, it is possible to use it to affirm each other instead. Our emotional hearts have been exhausted with the constant anxiety of storms and floods, potential of war, mass shootings, and the seemingly unquenchable fires. At times like this when our community bearings are seeded with conflict and uncertainty, wisdom calls us to consider higher ground to gain a healthier perspective."

This perspective, Digital2Grow believes, could be realized by people of faith reaching within their tool chest and applying a healing of the soul through grace, reconciliation, forgiveness, and listening to others with understanding to others of a different perspective.

To be considered for the package, organizations should complete a paragraph of around 250 words that explains how they believe social media could be used as a healing agent. Doing so will ensure the organization is affirmatively considered. It will give Digital2Grow the opportunity to determine which organizations are most committed to healing and rebuilding social trust by utilizing social media.

David Holland, also an online media advisor at Digital2Grow, adds: "Imagine November as a period of binding the wounds and setting our measure of social trust heading upwards. The crescendo of gratitude of Thanksgiving would have solid momentum."

David Holland of Orange, California, and Chris Daley, of Silver Spring, Maryland have a commitment to encourage the faith community to leverage the power of social media engagements for the common good. The two have set a deadline of October 25 for churches to indicate their interest. Holland and Daley are guaranteeing that the participating churches will indeed experience the miracle of faith marketing.
