Wristband Connection, a business in Houston, TX, is proud to announce that they continue to be the leader in custom silicone wristbands. This comes after sales figures for the third quarter of 2016 have shown sustained and continued growth, above and beyond that of the competition. The company has also noticed that there is an increased need for medical ID bracelets, and they have responded by starting to produce them as well.

John Smith from Wristband Connection says: "We have done incredibly well this year and cannot thank our customers enough. There were some people who thought that silicone wristbands were just a passing fad, but I think it can now be demonstrated that they are not. We always stay up to date with the latest designs and customer expectations, and they can always count on us."

The custom wristbands that the company produces have proven to be particularly popular for charitable events. In addition, others have used them for things, such as bachelor or bachelorette parties, weddings, funerals, children IDs, political affiliations, and more. Because the company offers these bands in so many different colors and color combinations, as well as in different thicknesses, people can truly design them in whichever way they see fit.

Meanwhile, those who have tried the products of the company have been very happy. Erica N. is one of more than 800 people who have given the company a 5-star review on Facebook. She says: "Amazing & high quality wristbands. I have the medical alert bands, they are seriously top quality at a low price, and it is literally a matter of life or death if I ever were not able to speak due to my illness so they are an important necessity in my life. I had called them due to personalization and the staff was so very kind and helpful too. I highly recommend this place. I have had my wristbands for almost 2 years and they still look flawless and I never even take them off."

Ordering a medical alert bracelet, as Erica N. had done, has the potential to be a lifesaver for people who suffer from various conditions, the company says.
