October 17, 2017 -
Miami, Fla. ? It was devastating as The Billy Goat, a leading company for landscaping in Miami, FL, watched Hurricane Irma tear through Florida, causing damage to interiors and exteriors within the state. Mangled trees, patio furniture and other debris have been displaced due to the heavy winds and rains of the state?s recent storms. As many Floridians have been posed with the question of ?what now,? Billy Goat Lawn Service is assisting with storm cleanup and Landscaping in Miami.

Owner of the Billy Goat Danny Macias said, ?We have a connection to the businesses and homeowners in the South Florida area. We hate to see our clients affected by damages to their properties ? we will do whatever we can to help in the cleanup efforts.?

Along with damage to residential homes, many businesses have been confronted with damaged trees, trunks, stumps and limbs. The Billy Goat is currently utilizing their landscaping talents by incorporating stump grinding into their available services. As nearly 50 of Florida?s 67 counties have had debris scattered by the storm, clean up efforts have been forced to be expedited.

?When trees fall in storms they are often segmented then removed from the property leaving the stump behind for the owners to deal with ? we can help with that,? said Macias.

Piled trees and branches can become an eyesore ? and many have complained that it is taking business away from the area. As many Florida homes and business had to grapple with damages to their interior ? a focus on the exterior is now starting to become a priority. Landscape design in Miami, FL, has been an imperative part of Florida?s post hurricane clean up because beautiful landscapes have always been such an important part of Miami?s culture.
