Caleb Allen, spokesperson for the company Mr. Homebody Brands, has announced that their new line of safety razors just went live on Amazon. He added that the company is excited with their latest product release because they know that safety razors are able to save their customers hundreds of dollars per year compared to disposable razors.

Safety Razors from Mr. Homebody Brands have been constructed with durable stainless steel. The company stated that besides never rusting, they will also last a lifetime. They said that their goal was to sell a product of this kind that could provide a smooth shave, which even beginners would have no difficulty using. Mr. Homebody Brands wrote the following statements on their Amazon storefront,

"As you open your razor, notice how great the perfectly weighted handle feels in your hand. Twist the handle, insert a blade, and off you go. The first time you use this razor, you'll fall in love with the smooth, close shave, reduced cuts, and less irritation. Many say this easy to use razor transformed their shave into a relaxing daily event. Pair with a hot cup of coffee in the morning for best results."

Caleb Allen added that by switching from disposable razors to the Safety Razors sold by the company, customers will be helping the environment greatly. He said that customers will also notice a huge difference in their top safety razor, which is because they have been handcrafted and "steeped in history". It was first invented in 1762 by a man named Jean Jacques Perret, and over the years the safety razor was improved upon by other companies, which led to the current day safety razor that all men have come to know. The company added by making the following statement,

"That became a tradition of shaving excellence that we have perfected. If you read that boring history lesson, you now agree this is the finest shaving tool in the world."

Upon making purchase, customers will be receiving an 8 ounce product that has the following dimensions: 3.8 inches by 1 inches by 1.6inches. The company said that because they are so confident in the quality of their Safety Razors, they will be offering all of their customers a "Beyond a Money-back Guarantee". This means that if customers are not completely satisfied with their product over the full 60 days from time of purchase, Mr. Homebody Brands will provide them with a full refund, with no questions asked. Caleb Allen said that their mission was not only to provide high quality products to their customers, but to be able to do this while giving them an incredible shopping experience as well. The company feels that, through Amazon, customers will be able to get lightning fast service once they buy their Safety Razors.

For those who would like more information on the latest line of products offered by Mr. Homebody Brands, the company encourages them to visit their Amazon storefront. Customers are also encouraged to leave an honest unbiased review of the product, as this will help others make a more informed decision as to whether the Safety Razors are a good match for them.
