Sanford, FL business Monika's Marketplace is proud to announce that their popular door draft blocker has been shown to significantly increase a home's energy efficiency. Uniquely, it is able to achieve this both during the winter and the summer. Hence, to also ensure that people will enjoy these benefits for as long as possible, the company has now added a storage bag with hanging cord that will help in storing the product properly and safely.

"In a recent experiment, we have been able to see a significant reduction in the amount of hot or cold air that escapes from a property," says a spokesperson for the company. "What this means practically, is that either the heating or the air conditioning unit does not have to work as hard at keeping the room at the right temperature. To make sure that people can use our stopper all year long, we now include a storage bag so it can easily be put away."

It is very important that people identify and prevent drafts in a property, for both both financial and ecological reasons. When running a heater or air conditioner, the cost can be substantial. If some of the generated warm or cool air escape through drafts, money is wasted. It also means that more fossil fuel have to be used in order to keep the property at the right temperature, and this is damaging to the planet as a whole. All of these can be easily resolved with a high quality door draft blocker.

Meanwhile, when it comes to a draft stopper decorative elements are often forgotten. Thus, Monika's Marketplace has addressed this by creating three different designs for people to choose from. Those are the brown, the green, and the brown patterned models. This ensures that people can choose a design that matches their personal style.

The draft door stopper has been available for some time on Amazon, where it has received in excess of 300 positive reviews, ranking as a 4.3 star item. People have hailed its beauty, ease of use, and primarily its effectiveness. In addition, the new storage bag with cord that comes with it has proven to be particularly popular.
