

Luvabella Dolls Are in Demand for Christmas 2017

November 21, 2017

November 21, 2017 -

Christmas 2017 is a little over a month away, and many parents are looking to buy this year's most in demand toys, including the very popular Luvabella and Luvabeau dolls. Every year there seems to be one or two new toys that become very popular, but are also difficult to find.

Luvabella dolls are lifelike, realistic babies that react to touch and voice. They "learn" over time as a child interacts with the doll. They require batteries and will generally turn on and off as the child plays with it. Many people have compared them to Cabbage Patch dolls.

Parents are searching far and wide for this new toy that has many people following listings on Amazon and eBay for availability. Sometimes when certain toys or models become a hit, it can be difficult to serve the demand.

For example, Toys 'R' Us has an exclusive boy version of the model called "Luvabeau" that has been even more difficult to locate than the standard models. Both the female and male versions come with a wide assortment of accessories such as feeding bottles and spoons.

Prices may continue to go up as the holiday buying season starts to pick up, especially after Black Friday when there are only about three weeks of shopping until Christmas. Those interested can track updates to availability on Facebook or Pinterest or simply visit their local toy store to request more information on these dolls.

Each box set comes with:

1 Luvabella or Luvabeau doll

1 Removable Dress

1 set of Removable Bottoms

1 Removable Bow

4 interactive accessories: Spoon, Bottle, Soother, LambyInstructions

This product is 4.3 pounds and is recommended age is 36 months to 5 years old.
