Fort Lauderdale, FL business Ashley Bridget, is well-known for its line of charm bracelets. Their line of stackable bracelets has been particularly popular. So much so, in fact, that they are now the must-have stocking filler for the holiday season.

"We are so happy to see how much people are enjoying our stackable bracelets," says Scott Hutchison from Ashley Bridget. "We wanted to create something that was both beautiful and functional. Some of our bracelets, for instance, hold inspirational charms and quotes, whereas others double as an elastic band holder. They can be worn individually, or they can be stacked together for a fantastic effect."

The company's hair tie bracelet is proving to be particularly popular this holiday season. It is an incredibly elegant bracelet that can be worn on its own, or that can fit an elastic band around it comfortably, thereby stopping people from constricting blood flow at the wrist. Scott adds: "Most people with long hair regularly find themselves wearing a painful elastic band around their wrist, or, if they wear their hair loose, wishing they had an elastic band on hand when it starts to get windy, for instance. Our bracelet ensures the people can always have an elastic band with them, in a comfortable way."

The hair tie bracelet comes in two different designs. The first is the full circular bangle over which an elastic can be placed. The second is a horseshoe shaped bracelet, of which the ends can be held together with a hair tie. Scott adds: "Because both models are made from beautiful, shiny materials, they really stand out. Wearers can make them more unique by adding their hair tie, however. A black tie always looks good, of course, but it is equally possible to put a hair tie on with a unique bobble or charm, for instance, personalizing your bracelet in a way that you see fit."

With the holiday season only just around the corner, the various stackable bracelets that also serve as an elastic holder are very popular and stocks are running out fast. It is the perfect stocking filler, being both useful and beautiful. They even come in a gift box just in time for the holidays.
