

Mine LLC Gave Runners Something More To Rave About On Their Cell Phone Arm Band

June 27, 2015

June 27, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

John Stidolph, spokesperson for the company MINE LLC, has announced that their customers definitely have something to rave about as the company runs its crazy discount deal on their iPhone jogging case. He said that all customers are able to buy the cell phone arm band for only $9.95 through their Amazon storefront. The discount ends at midnight PST July 3.

This was good news for many runners who were looking for a decent yet affordable way to keep their phones close to them while they are running, without it getting in their way. Most runners rely on their phones to keep them motivated, which is done by listening to music, talk shows, or special running stories while they are jogging. A large number of runners also use their smart phones as GPS devices, as it provides them with an effective way to keep track of their performance. A cell phone arm band makes this easy for them, as they don't have to worry about holding the phone in their hands while they are running.

The Armband iPhone 6 plus by MiNE has been designed to be adjustable and completely hands-free, and can fit the Apple iPhone 6+. The casing is made from neoprene, which the company stated is an excellent material to keep it lightweight and comfortable. The reason for this is because neoprene can easily twist and bend but will never stretch out of shape.

John Stidolph said that their cell phone armband is also very effective at protecting their customers' smart phones, as it helps keep sweat away while they are running. He added that the product is easy to wash, which can be achieved with gentle soap and water, and then letting it air dry. Currently, the Armband iPhone 6+ by MiNE has over 500 positive customer reviews. One customer at the following in their review,

"I am so glad I bought this iphone holder for running. I got so annoyed with accidentally getting tangled in the cords of my headphones on the treadmill. I ended up paying more attention too the motion of my arms then my actually pacing so I wouldn't knock my phone off the rack. The armband secures the iPhone5 and allows you to run without worry. It doesn't stretch out either so it's durable and in it for the long haul. Definitely satisfied with its quality."

An added key-holder has also been designed into the iPhone jogging case, and to help increase a runner's safety on the road, there is a reflective strip incorporated around the border of the casing. John stated that they also provide a 100% money-back guarantee. He added that, regardless of the reason, if customers are not happy with the product, they can simply return it and the company will refund every penny, or replace the case if there was a problem.
