June 26, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Rushford, NY based company, Heirloom Culinary, offered what they believed to be the perfect Father's Day gift with their nature inspired birdhouses. On June 21st many lucky Dads across the country were presented with cards, ties, socks, and other generic gifts, but Heirloom Culinary has something that consumers are calling unique and beautiful, in their Amish created products. Angel, a satisfied customer, had the following to say about her personal experience with the real wood bird homes:

"The moment I opened the box I could tell this birdhouse was made of real wood. It smells like Christmas time when you order a fresh pine wreath for the door and you unwrap the plastic and the lovely wood smell fills the room. Upon inspection this is made of deep cut bark. It's really well constructed using nice lumber and is very natural."

The company invites interested individuals to check the Amish bird house out through their online sales portal. Currently the houses can be purchased for $79.50, and has received incredibly positive reviews from consumers. The houses look to be created using fresh wood, with a bark like exterior that brings a sense of freshness and the wild wood into even the most urban environment. Heirloom Culinary describes it as:

"Very Unique Birdhouse which is fully assembled and ready to mount. It is made by the Amish designers with natural forest looks to easily attract the birds. If you have been fascinated by the Amish tradition and artwork like Amish furniture, then you need to order this birdhouse to add color and feel to your home and garden. Amish people are historically known to possess great artwork skills, this is one of their products."

Although the houses look to be solid, the front face of the product opens out for easy cleaning. The hole in the front is designed specifically for smaller birds to visit and easily find food. It is ventilated for the safety of the creatures using the home, and is designed and crafted in the United States using high quality materials.

The quality of the product is reflected in its durability, as the pine used is quite thick and has been described as heavy. Although it may be much heavier than competitor houses, which are crafted using less authentic materials, because of its dense nature it is said to last much longer than smaller and lighter houses. Another satisfied buyer of these interesting bird homes said:

"Very Unique Birdhouse which is fully assembled and ready to mount. It is made by the Amish designers with natural forest looks to easily attract the birds. If you have been fascinated by the Amish tradition and artwork like Amish furniture, then you need to order this birdhouse to add color and feel to your home and garden. Amish people are historically known to possess great artwork skills, this is one of their products."

Heirloom Culinary invites anybody who is interested in this ideal bird home to visit their sales page today. Each house is hand crafted, and thus original from any other. They have suggested that it's never too late to give all of the Fathers out there who were missed this Father's Day, a belated gift, especially when it is as great as this one is.
