June 26, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Miami Beach, Florida based company, FastFlight Jets, has announced that private flights are the future of luxury travel, and that they want to educate the public with a limited edition Traveler's Guide. The world of airline travel has always had its pros and cons, with many people complaining of impersonal staff, cramped seating space, long security and baggage check lineups and lost luggage. This company is working toward enlightening travelers on an alternative method of travel, which helps to eliminate much of these dissatisfying issues.

John Williams, a frequent business and leisure flyer, has been quoted by FastFlight Jets in saying the following about his own experiences:

"Our family has a busy schedule. There is only so much time that we really have to spend together. The last place I want to spend that time is in an airport security line or boarding area. And, what they're calling First Class just isn't as enjoyable as it used to be. Even charter companies can be pretty cold and impersonal. You spend a lot more money, but you can still just feel like cargo."

The answer to these poor experiences can reportedly be found through private flights. For Miami flights and Cuba flights can find the ebook on the company's website, and learn about subjects such as recommended vaccines for travel, notes for business culture and etiquette, a packing list for experienced traveler's, and much more. The company explains that everything from handpicked restaurants to try to a checklist for the perfect hotel can be found inside. Alex Simkovitz of FastFlight has stated:

"We make every effort to meet every Miami flight in person. We want to put the romance and adventure back into the travel experience, and that only happens when we personally oversee every detail for our passengers."

The company has made it clear that they are highly passionate about helping people get the most out of their flights and travel plans. They provide private flights for clients who wish to travel without the negative experiences listed above, and offer a number of different options which can be learned about through their website or various social media accounts. The company is described as follows:

"FastFlight Jets is a sister company to FastFlight Group, with a management team that has accumulated over 30 years of diverse experience in the aviation industry from sales and leasing to charters. Their global network provides access to flights, facilities and services to create unique travel experiences worldwide."

The company encourages those interested in taking advantage of their private travel options, or learning more about the ebook to visit them on Facebook or Twitter. These social media platforms offer consumer interaction, as well as updates on promotions, new product and service information, and more. FastFlight J invites all travelers to take advantage of the unique information offered in this new guide, and to consider what private travel could mean for them. They believe that being educated about all of the options available for travel is the first step in achieving the highest quality flight experience.
