January 30, 2018 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Record Peak Designs Inc., based in Northport Washington, has announced that they have upgraded The Claw® Mini flexible tripod for smartphones. The company wants to point out that this device is perfect for travel due to its smaller size, and it has now been updated with a locking head vlogger. The Claw® Mini is currently available exclusively from Amazon, where it has received over 500 positive reviews.

Robert McClelland from Record Peak Designs Inc. says: "We have updated our highly popular Claw Mini to make it even more fit for purpose. As iPhones and smartphones are getting bigger, some people mentioned that the head was no longer able to carry its weight. We have now updated this, so that it is stronger than ever."

Some of the key features of the Claw® Mini are that it is small and flexible, it comes with a Bluetooth remote, and can be set up anywhere. It also fits with all iPhones, including 6s, 7s, and 8s, as well as other smartphones and GoPros. The device is lightweight and available in three different colors.

It was after a number of reviews that Record Peak Designs Inc. came to the conclusion that the existing head was simply not strong enough. Committed to customer service, they listened to and resolved all of their customers' concerns, something that has been greatly appreciated. One customer in particular mentioned how happy they are with the fact that the business has decided to improve the Claw Mini. "They explained that the neck of the old stands in some models would snap. This was troubling for them and not acceptable, So they made the New design which is improved....," says an Amazon customer.

Following the upgrade of their Claw® Mini, the Record Peaks Facebook page has also been updated to enable more people to discuss their experiences with the device, as well as to ask questions and to share images that they were able to take thanks to the tripod. Numerous photographs have been shared taken by smartphones mounted on the tripod, and also of the tripod itself in different positions and situations. These show the versatility and strength of the upgraded Claw® Mini.
