San Diego, CA - A San Diego personal injury attorney recently explored the dangers of drugged driving, both under the influence of prescription drugs and illegal street drugs. Mr. Geruntino explains that in 2017, the number of fatalities caused by a drugged driver outnumbered those by a drunk driver in the U.S. He further notes that even drugs that have been prescribed by a doctor can inhibit one's ability to drive and lead to a DUI.

The recent post explains that there is a real danger because many people are not concerned with getting behind the wheel while under the influence of prescription drugs like OxyCotin, codeine, Ambien, Xanax, Vicodin, and others. Mr. Geruntino states that the advent of prescription marijuana and its acceptance for recreational purposes in California has made the prospect of people driving stoned even more of a concern.

Brett Geruntino claims he regularly uses his blog at www.acclaimlaw.com to cover topics, such as the dangers of drugged driving, that he feels are important to prospective clients and the public in general and hopes that by informing the public he will eventually have clients who are more aware of what they need and what to expect when they come to Acclaim Law Group.
