Cruvina, providers of shatterproof plastic glassware, announces that their cocktail glasses are designed with anti-tipping technology.

Erin Moore, Co-Founder of Cruvina, shares: "Serving drinks in plasticware is becoming more common since it is practical and cost-effective. Unfortunately, some plasticware is not of high standard, with the glasses or cups being poorly designed and flimsy. This can result in spillage due to the glasses or cups tipping over. We at Cruvina solved this problem by designing our glasses with anti-tipping technology."

Anti-tipping technology can be defined as those design elements that ensure that a cup or glass stands firmly on the surface on which it is placed so that it does not tip over easily. Cruvina cocktail tumblers have three of these design elements:

- 1) Bottoms which are straight. Rounded bottoms are unstable.
- 2) Bottoms which are as wide as the top of the glass. Bottoms which are smaller than the opening of the glass tip over more easily because they can become unbalanced.
- 3) Sturdy plastic that is thin and light, but does not bend or break easily.

The plastic used for the Cruvina cocktail tumblers is known Tritan plastic, which is created by Eastman. This plastic was chosen because it can be molded into a beautiful shape that fits nicely into the hand. As well, it has a clarity that resembles "real" glass. And just like "real" glass, Tritan plastic is both scratch-resistant and odor-resistant. After repeated use and washing, the glasses retain their shine. Furthermore, since Tritan plastic is virtually shatterproof, the glasses are safe to use as well. Even if they do get knocked over or dropped, they won't break.

Says Ms. Moore, "Anti-tipping technology makes our glasses safe to use, even around children and pets. But the glasses are also so beautiful that they will enhance the cocktail drinking experience no matter where you use them - whether at a formal party in your living room, or a casual dinner beside your pool.?

Each box comes with four 14-ounce glasses. Cruvina cocktail tumblers are available on Amazon and come with a 30-day money-back guarantee.
