March 15, 2018 -
Greenwood plumbing company recently made an announcement concerning sewer systems, and potential problems that homeowners may have to deal with. The company stated that the announcement was made in the interest of public service.

(Greenwood, IN, 2018) Midwest Plumbing Greenwood recently made a public service announcement regarding issues pertaining to residential sewer systems. The company stated that the sewer system is possibly the most important part of a home?s plumbing. Midwest Plumbing Greenwood went on to state that problems with the sewer line should be fixed immediately, for the comfort and safety of all occupants in the home.

Midwest Plumbing Greenwood continued its announcement by describing some of the harmful effects of sewer line problems. Midwest Plumbing Greenwood stated that one potential effect is the inconvenience of having toilets that do not flush and drains that do not allow water to pass through. Midwest Plumbing Greenwood stated that these issues prevent homeowners from going about their daily routines in the home. Midwest Plumbing Greenwood also stated that these issues can pose a serious health hazard to a home?s occupants, as standing water can be a breeding ground for mold and bacteria.

Midwest Plumbing Greenwood went on to describe some of the causes of sewer line backups. The company stated that one of the primary causes of sewer line backups is invasive tree roots. Sewer lines run underground, and tree roots can actually grow into the path of the sewer line, causing the line to bend or break. Midwest Plumbing Greenwood stated that another common cause of broken sewer lines is rodents and other underground creatures. According to Midwest Plumbing Greenwood, these critters can burrow into the sewer line itself, causing serious disruption. Midwest Plumbing Greenwood stated that, because rodents reproduce quickly, it can be difficult to get rid of all of them at once.

Midwest Plumbing Greenwood closed its announcement by providing some company information. Midwest Plumbing Greenwood stated that it has been based in the Greenwood area for several years, and has extensive experience providing plumbing and gas fitting services to Greenwood residents. The company stated that it employs licensed and insured master plumbers and gas fitters, who prioritize safety, quality, efficiency, and customer service. Midwest Plumbing Greenwood went on to state that it operates twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, in the interest of customer convenience. The company concluded by stating that it is a family-owned business and always provides service with honesty and integrity.
