Amazing.com recently released the Amazing Selling Machine review of Biswa Malla, an international seller tapping into both the U.S and European Amazon markets. Biswa was an IT consultant with no experience selling on Amazon. He took the Amazing Selling Machine (ASM) course and two months after launching his first product quit his job. Selling in both the U.S and European markets allowed him to double his business in less than 6 months. Biswa?s multi-market story on how to start an Amazon business in the U.S. and Europe comes just as Amazon announces their own international expansion, a new office to employ 3,000 in Vancouver, Canada.

Amazon announces their Vancouver expansion and an addition of 3,000 new jobs. The additional employees will expand across fields like e-commerce, cloud computing, and machine learning. Amazon currently employs more than 1,000 people in Vancouver who work in retail and Amazon Web Services products, in addition to human resources technology. The company expects to employee over 5,000 people in Vancouver in the coming years.

During his interview with Mike McClary and Rich Henderson, Biswa Malla shares his insight on selling in U.S and European markets, customizing products with manufacturers, and marketing product on Amazon. He explains that by following the steps outlined in the Amazing Selling Machine (ASM) training course, he quickly found a product to sell. In addition to skills for selling, ASM gave Biswa access to a community of sellers willing to help him with challenges and road blocks he approached while growing his Amazon business. While living in London, Biswa launched his first product in the U.S and expanded to European markets just 6 months after starting in the U.S.

Amazon was founded by Jeff Bezos in 1994. Amazon?s four guiding principles include customer obsession rather than competitor focus, commitment to operational excellence, long-term thinking, and passion for invention. Amazon has pioneered serves like 1-Click shipping, Prime, Fulfillment by Amazon, Fire TV, Alexa and Amazon Echo.

Amazing Selling Machine is a training course provided by Amazing.com. ASM recently launch Amazing Selling Machine 9 (ASM9), the 9th version of the training course, but on Thursday night the doors to ASM9 officially closed. The course is designed to help sellers launch their own Amazon business, selling physical products. ASM9 members have access to the brand new 8-week online web series, weekly group coaching calls, the ASM mentor program, and the ASM Private Resource Vault, as well as two new bonuses: a product listing evaluation and FREE traffic driven to their product listings.

Amazing.com was founded in Austin, Texas by Matt Clark and Jason Katzenback. Through online courses and live instruction, the company teaches entrepreneurs how to create a successful private label Amazon business. Their mission is to help entrepreneurs find financial freedom through the success of their own Amazon business.
