Panama City, FL- Being one of the top Panama City content restoration companies, Disaster Response Team is always working hard to make sure springtime showers brings nothing but May flowers-especially in harsh storms. Although severe storms may not be a common occurrence in the area, they still remain very dangerous when they do come. The employees at Disaster Response Team are planning on making sure the community is educated and up to date on what to do if a tropical storm comes this spring season.

"Florida is known for it's beautiful weather but we want to make sure that when the occurrence of a tropical storm swings by, that the community is informed," Mark Broersma, who is the owner of Disaster Response Team, said.

As one of the top providers of emergency response services in Panama City, Disaster Response Team knows that the community needs to be in top shape when it comes to providing storm protection. Once a storm comes, it is vital that the community takes the right steps to remain safe. In a thunderstorm, people should remain indoors, and avoid standing close to windows or doors.

"The community's safety is our top concern," Mark Broersma said. "We want to encourage everyone to stay away from anything that might seem dangerous during a storm."

After the passing of a storm, everyone should evaluate any damage done on the property or home. If the damage is serious, Disaster Response Team can be at the community's service to help recover.
