X-Arena believes it is important to teach students and adults to work as a team and to communicate and problem solve as a group. One satisfied customer, Sue Beckerman, from Crossroads Alternative Middle School in Thornton, CO, said the following in regard to the team building exercises at X-Arena:

"X-Arena fits in perfectly with our curriculum because our students are using all of the skills we have taught them without even realizing it! My groups need to communicate, deal with frustrations, and really problem solve. Every activity at X-Arena addresses these skills in a fun, motivating, and exciting way. I have taken my school groups to X-Arena for the last 9 years, and I am always excited at how the activities seem to mesh with the philosophy and curriculum at my school."

The X-Arena website supplies a lengthy outline of activities, event types, pricing, and different package options on their website, along with photos and a contact section for customer interaction. The accolades for their Denver team building, as well as their community events, make it easy to see why they were chosen for such a prestigious city award.

X-Arena has been described as a mix between American favorites such as Wipeout, Ninja Warrior, and other similar activity based game shows. Each event is guided and overseen by a professional and friendly coach who keeps things safe and fun throughout the activities. Some of the events include building, climbing, competitions, and various other entertaining activities.
