Pensacola, Florida - Elite Mechanical Systems, a full-service Pensacola air conditioning repair company, has a couple of tips for keeping everyone's air conditioners healthy this summer. They know that summers can get extremely hot and no one wants their AC unit to give out on them. In order for the unit to run properly, it is essential to keep up the maintenance on it and ensure that it is clean and healthy.

Owner of Elite Mechanical Systems, Michael Solliday says, "Many people do not realize that air conditioners can get very dirty and it will affect how the machine works. It's not very difficult to keep the unit healthy."

One thing that Elite Mechanical Systems suggest to do to keep AC units healthy is to change the air filters. It is possibly the easiest and simplest way to keep the unit well-maintained. Filters will trap dust, dirt, and other particles in it that will clog it up and cause the unit to not have a smooth air flow. Not having smooth air flow will result in a space cooling slowly and the unit overworking itself. Simply changing the filter can create positive air flow and keep the air conditioning unit healthy.

Another way to keep an air conditioner in Pensacola, FL healthy is to check the inside of it occasionally. One thing to look for is water in the pan because it isn't supposed to be there. Water is supposed to drain into a tube in the house and will cause damages to an AC unit if left inside and not fixed. Also look for any animals that may have gotten inside. Patch any holes with steel wool because most animals won't be able to chew through it.

"Follow simple maintenance tips and you won't have to have someone come out to fix your air conditioner, " says Michael Solliday. "Summer should be spent having fun, not worrying about air conditioning problems."
