Adam Elements, a leading global provider of intelligent lifestyle products, announces their latest product addition, the CASA A03 Type C Adapter Hub. The versatile hub enables users to easily connect, charge, display, and transfer data from its SD card slot, two USB Type-A ports, VGA and HDMI ports.

CASA Hub A03 is an indispensable companion for computers containing a USB Type-C port. It's compatible with macOS, Windows, Chrome OS, and Linux. As every other Adam Elements product, CASA Hub A03 does not require additional installation when connecting it for the first time.

The multifunctional Type-C adapter hub connects to other monitors through its HDMI port and displays videos maintaining their high quality. CASA Hub A03 is also a great option when it comes to meeting rooms or classrooms as its VGA port conveniently connects to projectors. Last but not least, its SD card reader slot is able to read fast data without a problem.

CASA Hub A03 strong aluminum housing mitigates electromagnetic interference to keep users peripherals safe. It also resists scratches, impact, and corrosion. It's offered in four different colors for users to match with their laptops. Users are able to choose between silver, grey, gold, and rose gold.

"Our CASA Hub series is built with premium materials and precision engineering offering the most necessary peripheral connections for most devices with Type-C connection," an Adam representative said. "We created different hubs to perfectly fit users needs." The company's products include smart mobile accessories, wearables, and smart health monitors.
