June 05, 2018 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Chino, California: Superior Life, the premier bike accessories company, has recently launched their new version of their popular rear back light that is now available for sale on their Amazon storefront. The company specialises in all kinds of bike accessories that range from bags, apparel to mobile phone holders as well as mini pumps.

With their new launch, they are introducing rechargeable bike lights that helps one ride safely during the dark with its high intensity LED light. The spokesperson at Superior Life says, "It has been our intention to create bike lights that can help cyclists to pursue their hobby at all times of the day. A lot of cyclists prefer to cycle during late nights or early in the morning so as to enjoy the clear roads, however, the danger in doing this is that they may not be visible to our drivers if they do not use a high quality led bike light. With our new launch, we are hoping to provide them with the ultimate solution to this problem."

As exclusive suppliers of mountain bike accessories, Superior Life prides itself in creating products that solve all the problems faced by cyclists, right from being stranded in the middle of the road with a flat tire or having no led lights at the front and back to light the way. With great customer service and a passion for solving their clients' problems, Superior Life is committed to bringing the best solutions for bikers the world over.

These super bright, wide-angle bike lights are easy to install and consist of a quick release system that takes no time at all to use. It also features a great dual function multi-color light that lets users choose between red and white led, according to the situation. To learn more about Superior Life's ultra bright bike light, check out their Amazon storefront or visit their official website.
