

Adam Elements Revamps Its Flash Drive for Apple Devices

June 08, 2018

June 08, 2018 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Adam elements, a leading mobile technology accessory brand, announces the addition of the next-generation iKlips DUO+ which is a mobile storage device that allows users to free up space on their iPhone and iPad with up to 128GB of capacity. The iKlips DUO+ features an ergonomic design that fits any iPhone or iPad case due to its extended lightning connector.

The iKlips DUO+ is equipped with a lightning connector with a reading speed of 25 MB/s and a USB 3.1 connector on the other side with a reading speed of up to 130 MB/s for faster transfer speeds to Mac or PCs. Both ends allow users to quickly and easily move files between their mobile device and a computer.

“Now, more than ever before, users are in need of extra portable storage devices for their phones and tablets as they want to keep all their information and memories safe in one place,” an Adam representative said. “The iKlips DUO+ offers these users the best solution so they can stop worrying about running out of space and store all their files in a reliable device of up to 128GB.”

The iKlips DUO+ allows the user to automatically backup their camera roll, contacts, and social media, capture photos and videos, and transfer files from a smartphone to a computer without internet connection. The iKlips DUO+ flash drive offers a free to download of the iKlips app with new features and a user-friendly experience.

The app has a built-in camera function enabling users to shoot and save photos and videos directly into the flash drive without taking any space on their mobile phone or tablet. The iKlips app also plays videos and music without having to use internet data which makes it perfect to take on the go. The app allows users to ultimately secure the device or secure specific files with a password or fingerprint.

The iKlips DUO+ is available on amazon.com in five different colors and three different capacities to meet users needs.
