

Adam Elements iKlips DUO+ Flash Drive Protects Users Information

June 27, 2018

June 27, 2018 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Adam Elements, a global leader of the flash drive industry, announced its iKlips DUO+ flash drive, can be used to secure users personal data from being stolen. Besides securing users data, the flash drive allows users to free up space on their mobile device.

The iKlips DUO+ pairs with its free iKlips app which allows users to secure their files with a password or touch ID fingerprint recognition. Also, the flash drive offers a quick and safe way to move content between devices. Its extended lightning connector makes it the perfect storage device to use with even the thickest phone cases.

?The iKlips DUO+ is a powerful flash drive that transfers photos, videos, music, contacts and more important information from an iPhone or iPad to a laptop,? an Adam representative said. ?We created a reliable external storage device for people in need of extra space on their devices.?

Users can back up their camera roll, contacts, social media, and documents. Furthermore, the iKlips app allows users to capture photos, videos, and record voice notes. With a lightning connector on one end and a USB on the other, it makes it the perfect on-the-go external storage device that does not require an internet connection to be accessed. Its lightning connector offers a reading speed of 25 MB/s and its USB 3.1 connector a reading speed of up to 130 MB/s.

?Thanks to our encryption software that password-protects files, users can keep all their information and memories safe in one place,? the representative added. The iKlips app is available to download from the App Store for iPhone and iPad devices. ?When the iKlips connects to a mobile device the app is automatically launched and ready to use.?
