

New Blog by Baltimore Plastic and Cosmetic Surgery Center Explains Why Smaller Breast Implants Might Be the Right Choice

June 26, 2018

June 26, 2018 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Baltimore, MD - In a recent blog post, Dr. Schreiber of Baltimore Plastic and Cosmetic Surgery Center discusses breast augmentation and encourages some women to consider smaller implants. He explains that many women considering breast implants originally think big implants are preferred, but this is not always the case.

The blog tells readers that getting the best results from breast augmentation is often the result of considering one's body type and personal habits. The doctors at Baltimore Plastic and Cosmetic Surgery Center hope that knowing important pieces of information like this will help patients get the best results from their procedures and recover as easily as possible.

Dr. Schreiber uses his platform on <http://www.baltimoreplasticsurgery.com> to educate the public about recent advances in plastic and cosmetic surgery. He explains that while there is a lot of information on the internet concerning cosmetic procedures, not all of it is reliable and he wanted to add the point of view of a professional to help guide his patients.

Dr. Jeffrey Schreiber performs everything from breast augmentation to facial rejuvenation in Baltimore. Anyone with questions regarding cosmetic surgery, including a facelift in Baltimore, or who would like to schedule a consultation can contact Baltimore Plastic Surgery.
