Charlotte, NC based company Shalu, has announced that since their aromatherapy diffuser has been making waves with customers, they have decided to give away free copies of their blend book through their website as well. Many users of the Shalu system, believe that the book perfectly explains how to use essential oil diffuser in traditional and new ways. One happy buyer wrote: "The delivery man brought my Shalu Diffuser to my door a couple of weeks ago. I love it! I'm a therapist, and have wanted to use essential oils in my office for some time, but was concerned about diffusers that use heat. Somehow the Shalu creates a fine fog without heat, diffusing the essential oils into my office without noise. Pretty amazing."

The aromatherapy diffuser has become a popular product as reflected by customer reviews and testimonials. The product is said to offer immediate benefits, including a relaxing environment and the release of stress and tension. The unit is easy to setup, with only a cord to attach and plug in and use whichever essential oils are preferred. The company has said the following regarding the diffuser and how it works: "This all-natural diffuser can be a great alternative to flameless candles for people living in apartments and dorms where candles are prohibited. You already know that essential oils create physical, mental, and spiritual equilibrium with their healing and soothing properties. Wake up refreshed and ready to go with enlivening oils as the morning breaks."

Shalu's diffusers are not only able to deliver uplifting and therapeutic scents to those who use them, they are also designed to offer a modern look which reportedly appeals to most styles of home decor, and the units are compact for use in homes or offices. The compact nature also allows them to travel well, meaning that those who enjoy their diffusers can bring them on vacations and business trips without the worry of bulky items taking up too much space during transit. Shalu states: "As soon as the Shalu essential oil diffuser is activated, your favorite essential oil is distributed through the air to create a renewing environment. Release stress, begin healing, start relaxing with the push of a button. TRANSFORM your health as essential oils renew your life with every breath. ELEVATE your mood as your favorite essential oils drift through your space."

The free Blend Book gives users of the diffuser advice on different scents to use, mix together, and what benefits are associated with each. Scents like lemon can uplift and energize, while lavender is known to be calming and relaxing for use at night or during anxious moments. The company invites consumers to contact them using the communication information available on their website or online sales page for questions and concerns regarding the diffusers and blend book.
