The Cascade Team Real Estate just announced today, one of their Seattle real estate agents, Jared Tadique, just passed his Managing Broker test for the State of Washington Department Of Licensing. "I have been working hard over the last three years building relationships with clients and helping them navigate Seattle Neighborhoods in their home search, so this is just another step in advancing my real estate career," says Jared. Jared has been an integral part of The Cascade Team's growth in Seattle and he has been successful in not only helping home buyers navigate the rapidly moving Seattle housing market, but has brought a new level of marketing and service to Seattle home sellers.

Here is what one client stated about working with Jared. "Jared Tadique worked tirelessly for months doing research, legwork and chauffeur work to make sure that I found the home of my dreams. He never let me lose hope that I would be able to purchase the home I wanted in the neighborhood I wanted that was within my price range. His humor and his knowledge of the real estate market kept me calm and confident every step of the emotional house hunting journey. My little boy and I now have a place to call our own and I couldn't have done it without Jared."

Jared's focus will be on the continued development of the North Seattle housing market as he continues to own and dominate his area. In addition, this will allow him to continue his unwavering commitment to provide Simply Outrageous Service to every customer he comes in contact with.
